MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 16, 1893.

Harper's Weekly has joined the New York World and other anti-snappers and mugwumps in denouncing the President for appointing Mr. Van Alen U. S. Ambassador to Italy, because the thousand dollars to Mr. Cleveland's campaign election fund; and that, too, though they all knew when they were demanding Mr. Cleveland's nomination, against the advice of the wisest members of the democratic party, that he himself had subscribed liberally to the same fund. The President, if he him to vote. Nethertheless Mr. Dulive long enough, will learn that old friends are better and truer than new ones, and that good and true democrats and smiled derisively at their colleagues, friends are better and truer than new don't think that a subscription to a democratic campaign fund should, of itself It would have been "discourteous" to ocratic campaign fund should, of itself alone, be sufficient to exclude a demoerat from office, under a democratic administration.

1T is now said that the U. S. House of Representatives will pass a new tariff bill before Christmas, but that the fate of that bill in the Senate is unknown. If the former part of this statement be as incorrect as the latter. the time that may be spent in the consideration of the bill will be thrown away, for, after the present proceedings of the Senate, nothing it better known than the fate of the bill referred to in that body. If a small minority there can defeat a non-partizan measure, intended to benefit the whole country and all the people in it, how can it be expected that such a political measure as a tariil bill can be passed when the parties are so nearly even as they now are in the Senate.

been developed in this country that is journ. influenced by a blind hatred of preperty, and, that is rapidly becoming favor. capable of the most injurious consequences. If this be true, it is not at all Mr. Voorhees, "in the last seventy strange. Such a sentiment has existed in all countries that have a recorded been discharging a great public history, and it has, sooner or later, de- duty. stroyed all republican governments. That such a feeling should exist is by no means unnatural, and when the majority of the people of a country have misapprehension that may prevail in no property to defend, as is rapidly becoming the case in the United States, the days of republican government in that country are numbered.

U.S. House of Representatives, articles are frequently seen in democratic newspapers headed "Davenport Doomed." Nothing could be more misleading, advocates of this bill have surrendered, Davenport is not doomed. ### SILVER IN THE SENATE.

The session of the Senate Saturday lasted for only six hours, Mr. Voorhees himself moving the adjournment at promptly 5 o'clock. He would have preferred a recess, but to this there was objection from the opponents of the re-peal bill, and as it was not a matter of enough importance to quibble over, the Senate adjourned. Mr. Voorhees, how-

The notices of amendments to the rules were given, as follows:

By Mr. Lodge: That it shall not be in order, at any time, for any Senator to read a speech, either written or printed; that the name of a Senator who is present and refuses to vote, shall be entered on the journal and counted for the purpose of making a quorum.

By Mr. Stewart: That no Senator who is, directly or indirectly, interested in any national bank or its stock, shall | do it for him. vote on any bill or question affecting the coinage or the issue of currency.

By Mr. Gallinger: That when a majority of the entire membership re quests, in writing, that debate shall be closed on any bill or resolution the paper shall be referred to the committee on rules, which committee shall report within five days an order naming a day and hour when the vote shall be taken such report to be acted upon without amendment or debate.

Mr. Hill called up a resolution amend the rules heretofore offered by him, and addressed the Senate in explanation and advocacy of it. It proposes that upon any roll-call (other than one to determine the presence of a quorum) any Senator present and paired may announce such pair, and that fact shall be entered upon the journal, and the Senator so present and paired, but not voting, shall be counted as present for the purpose of making a quorum. The question was discussed by Senators on both sides of the chamber, and various constitutional, legal and practical difficulties and objections were presented, to which Mr. Hill replied.

Mr. Hoar admitted that the proposed amendments, if adopted, would have a able, but not unanimous. good effect in breaking up an obstruction to business.

Mr. Harris put this case to Mr. Hill : inspector. Suppose there are forty-five Senators present-two more than a quorum. Suppose that twenty of these Senators are paired with twenty who are absent. Suppose that on the passage of the bill ten Senators vote "yea" and five "nay,"

Mr. Hill—I do, I do. If thirty-odd Senators in this body prefer to remain silent (as they do here every day), while thirteen or fourteen Senators vote in fewer of the research of a fell and in favor of the passage of a bill, and there is no negative vote, I see no reason why that bill should not become a

After further discussion, the resolution went over without action.

A resolution offered by Mr. Dolph referring to the committee on privileges and elections the question whether absent Senators may be "compelled" to attend was presented and agreed to.

The silver purchase repeal bill was then taken up and the Vice President set about disentangling the parliamentary twists into which the Senate had got itself Friday night over the point whether Mr. Dubois should be excused from voting on the question of allowing Mr. Peiler to have a document read at the clerk's desk. By a vote of 29 to 37 latter, a rich man, subscribed fifty the Senate refused to excuse Mr. Dubois. The name of the Idaho Senator was then called. Mr. Dubois remained in his seat, silent.

The ridiculous helplessness of the Serate and the absurd position in which it places itself by its blind obedience to "senatorial courtesy" was thus illustrated. By its refusal to accept Mr. Dubois' excuse, the Senate ordered bois and his neighbor, Mr. Power, of Montana, who also refrained from votenforce the order of the Senate, and so the "silent Senators" will persist in their defiance. The Senate has no punishment for such contumacy. It is getting so accustomed to contempt that it no longer minds the exhibition in one of its own members. After a par-liamentary debate Mr. Jones addressed the Senate in opposition to the silver repeal bill and became engaged in a colloquy with Mesers, Gray, Vilas, Aldrich and Hoar about the quantity o uncoined silver in the world, the decline of the prices, the low rates of in terest, &c. After about an hour spent in answering questions and meeting objections, Mr. Jones reverted to his prepared speech, but was soon again in volved in an argument with Mr. Ald ich. Taking advantage of a break in his discussion, Mr. Voorhees said First. I desire to congratulate the Senator from Nevada upon his splen did contribution to the literature of his great debate this afternoon. Th charm of what he has said has been en hanced by the personal affection which the members of this body bear for him. I desire to ask whether it will be agree Mr. Depew says a sentiment has able to him to yield to a motion to ad-

With the concurrence of and upon the consultation with, the friends of the pending measure, I have a motion to adjourn at th's hour. I remember reading once, with great interest, an account of the battle of the first commodore of the American Since the passage of the bill to repeal the federal election laws by the Serapis and her allies. When the Brit-surrendered, be said in reply: "I have only begun to fight." The motion was agreed to, and the Senate, at 5.05, adjourned till to-day. The New York Herald says: The talk of compromise continues and gains apparent strength by repetition. It is all talk. Thus far there are absolutely no tangible evidences of compromise within the intellectual grasp. These rumors of impending compromise assail the ears on every hand. The most casual inquiry among Senators who eve every means of knowing what is going on reveals the fact that there is noth ing in such stories except the designs of those who start them. Not a single proposition yet made presents common ground upon which a majority can unite. There is a possibility that such ground may be discovered later, but it is not in sight now. The extremes are ever, asserted that the fight had just as widely apart as ever they were. Unconditional repeal, compared with all or any suggestions of a compromise character, is in robust health. The repeal majority is firm. The President s immovable. Other reports from Washington howeever say it is thought that ther must be some sort of compromise unless the Vice-President either exercises his power of putting the question of a vote on the repeal bill before the Senate or will turn over the chair to some one else to

Secretary Carlisle is quoted as having declared that the administration is not considering the possibility of a compromise on the silver repeal bill, it having submitted its plan, which had met with the approbation of the country and the House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16. Notwithstanding there has been great pressure brought to bear to have the Senate to take action on the nomination of Mr. Hornblower, of New York nominated by the President to be one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, the committee on the udiciary appears to move slowly in the matter, and the meeting to-day was as barren of results as were those which preceded it. The committee absolutey refrained from even discussing the nomination save in the most casual manner. No member of the committee can be prevailed upon to guess at a time when the nomination of Mr. Hornblower will be reported to the Senate, although the belief is expressed that the report, when made, will be favor-

It was not a theory said, but a condition that the rule of the Senate could not be changed, and hat unless they are changed a few nembers can prevent legislation. If any Senator could solve the problem said, he would believe that the quality of omniscience had been imper-sonated. Mr. Aldrich said the demorats would be held responsible for th ction or non-action of the Senate, and sked if one-fifth of the Senate could prevent the passage of the silver bill why couldn't they do the same with election and the tariff bills. Mr Hill said the Constitution authorize he majority of the Senate to make the rules for governing the proceedings of that body, and that if the majority would not exercise that authority, the Senate had better disband. Mr. Hill' remarks were suspended by the expira-tion of the morning hour, and Ma Jones resumed his speech in opposition o the bill to repeal the silver act Many conferences and consultations of the bill referred to were held in the Senate to-day, but to all appearances a ettlement is as far off as ever, and the talk about the adjournment of the ses sion toward the close of the week and

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16, 1893. SENATE.

The eleventh week of the session opened this morning with a large attendance of Senators-all the leaders of the forces on either side of the silver fight being in their places and holding conferences. The taking up of the silver purchase repeal bill was delayed by action on a House joint resolution as to the suffrage at the first municipal elections in Oklahoma Territory. It was amended by a proposition that no one shall be authorized to vote or hold office who is not a citizen of the United States. An amendment to strike out the word "male" so as to allow the right of suffrage to women was voted down-yeas 9; nays 40. Subsequently the clause to which the Hoar amendment, providing that none but citizens of the United States shall vote, was attached, was struck out, and the joint

That there has been a large loss of life now seems certain, but it may be several days before it is known how many sailors perished. If I am not the party's legal nominee, you may be as-sured, Mr. Barley, that I will not be a candi-date until the legal nomination is conferred upon me. I prorose, however, to stand upon my rights until it be demonstrated that I am hown in every section. The losses in the wrong. It must be evident to every intelligent mind that it would be absolute folly for me to participate in the convention proposed to be held on October 20th, for the reason that I contend that the convention held on October the 10th conferred mon me intermediate that I am a small to be ended to evident to every intelligent mind that it would be absolute folly for me to participate in the convention held on October the 10th conferred mon me around into the sea.

At Asbury Park the sea was raised mountain hight and as each breaker would strike the piers and pavilions on the board walks, the foam from them would envelop the beach for several bundred yards.

The definition of the democratic party. Mr. Caton, as his "ultimatum," proposes the following plan of adjusting differences: That he meet in conference with W. N. Febrey, H. H. Voung and James E. Clements. This is declined for the reson that hy names significantly appropriate the property of the property o friends, while I have the privilege of naming only three. It is a well-known fact that W. N. Febrey and H. H. Young two of the gentlemen named by him, opposed my re-elecnot prepared to say. In conclusion I would most respectfully suggest that you, as chair-man of the city democratic committee, refer this controversy to the State executive committee for solution, Yours very truly,
